

NEW MEXICO LAW OFFICES OF THE PUBLIC DEFENDER LIMITED PRACTITIONER POSITION

This position allows the LOPD to extend an offer to applicants prior to graduation from law school, which provides a law student the guarantee of employment after graduation and the LOPD the guarantee of an employee dedicated to indigent defense. The purpose of the limited practitioner position is to bridge the time from when a student graduates law school and is sworn in as a practicing attorney. Since the LOPD is a government agency, it is unable to hire an individual as an attorney unless they are sworn and licensed by a state bar. Individuals extended an offer are expected to join the LOPD team soon after taking the bar exam for extensive training on criminal defense, local rules and practices, and the LOPDs approach to providing holistic representation. Once the limited practitioner is sworn in and performing at the expected level of practice, the limited practitioners will be moved into an assistant trial attorney position based on demonstrated performance and availability of positions.

Timelines:

For spring graduates, offers are extended as early as October and as late as July, depending on available positions and budget. For fall graduates, offers are extended as early as September and as late as April, depending on available positions and budget. The limited practitioners generally start after the bar exam and train for a period of four to fourteen weeks. For spring graduates, the limited practitioners generally start after the July bar exam at the beginning of August and continue with the program through Mid-October when sworn into the State of New Mexico Bar. The limited practitioners participate in a lengthy training program which includes training on specific legal issues, docket and trial preparation, and litigation skills.

“The greatest part about being an LOPD limited practitioner was the opportunity to get real experience allowing me to seamlessly transition into being an attorney. ... I was eased into the task of preparing dockets, analyzing cases, strategizing with clients, and figuring the ins and outs of dynamic courtrooms. The real on the job training was invaluable and led me to feel much more competent and effective once I began in earnest.” Maxwell Pines, UC Berkley School of Law Graduate, Associate Trial Attorney licensed and practicing with LOPD since 2014.

Application Materials:

Any students seeking a Limited Practitioner position must submit a full application by emailing it to LOPD-JOBS@lopdm.us. The following must be attached: 1) a current resume, 2) a cover letter, and 3) current transcripts. Please include in the subject line: “Application for Limited Practitioner Position” and your graduation month and year.

Please include the following information in the body of the email:

Other relevant information:

- The posting is designed to hire for positions in LOPD offices throughout the state.
- The LOPD has hired as many as 10 law graduates from one graduating class.
- Generally, more positions are available for spring graduates with start dates after the July bar exam.
- This is a temporary position intended to bridge the gap between graduating from law school and passing the bar.
- Once sworn in and having demonstrated the expected level of practice, limited practitioners will be moved into an assistant trial attorney position based on demonstrated performance and as the positions become available.

“Being offered a position allowed me to a) hit the ground running as soon as I got my bar results; and b) allowed me to really focus during bar prep because I didn’t have to worry about finding a job after getting my results. I felt appreciated that an organization had effectively put a “down payment” on me and wanted to invest in me. This is not something any DA’s office does (that I know of). This ultimately made me feel valued and made investing my time/energy into the job effortless.” UNMSOL Graduate, Associate Trial Attorney licensed and practicing with LOPD since 2014.

“The clerkship helped financially while waiting for bar results. More importantly, it allowed me to learn the basics of the non-legal aspects of my job while exposing me to the legal aspects in a way that allowed me to discover important rules and tactics – giving me a head start on being a lawyer.” UNMSOL Graduate, Associate Trial Attorney licensed and practicing with LOPD since 2013.
